

CHEESECAKE WARS

Hal Ames & Kobe Chen

Who doesn't like cheesecake? Well, I guess there might be a few people who don't like it, but in this story, there are cheesecakes who don't like each other. Whenever they are in the same place, a war begins and soon after, the cheesecakes are destroyed. So, you must be very careful when you mix different cheesecakes or else you may not have anything to eat.

The cheesecake that started the whole thing was the chocolate cheesecake. It became evil and decided to destroy all the cheesecakes in the world that were not chocolate. The reason it became angry is because its reputation was hurt when people began to stop eating chocolate cheesecake when doctors said it was too fattening; it contains too many calories. Before this, chocolate cheesecake was the most popular of all the cheesecakes, but now it is one of the least favorites. No matter what the chocolate cheesecake tried, its popularity continued to decline. It even tried to change its recipe to become more tasty and use less calories, but even that failed. In fact, it has become so angry that it declared war on cheesecakes.

On the other hand, cookies and cream cheesecake, which had become extremely popular, decided to fight against chocolate cheesecake to save the world. It warned about the evils of chocolate cheesecake and its goal to destroy the world, but no one listened, and they didn't care.

Granola cheesecake joined the battle alongside cookies and cream cheesecake. Even though cookies and cream cheesecake is now a favorite, most doctors say it is not healthy. Even though, it still wanted to save the world.

Charlie loved cheesecake. His favorite was chocolate cheesecake. Whenever his mother brought him chocolate cheesecake he would eat it almost immediately, which made it difficult for chocolate cheesecake to cause trouble in his refrigerator with the other cheesecakes. One of his friends, Bacon, told him about the cheesecake wars in their refrigerator at his home, but Charlie didn't believe him since he had never had a problem at his house.

One day when he got home from school, his mother told him she had put his chocolate cheesecake in the refrigerator. He got excited and opened the door. To his surprise the insides were a mess. There was cheesecake everywhere, and in the middle was chocolate cheesecake and it seemed to be smiling at him.

"MOM! There's cheesecake all over the fridge! What happened?" Charlie was shocked.

His mother came and looked at the mess.

"I don't understand. Everything was fine until now. I put all the cheesecakes in there just an hour ago."

Charlie began to think. Maybe his friend was right. Maybe he needed to find out what really happened.

He took out the chocolate cheesecake and ate it. It was so good that he almost forgot about what happened in his fridge.

He asked his mother, "How did the cheesecakes get destroyed?"

"I have no idea. It seems that the chocolate cheesecake was the winner, but I don't know how they fought," she answered.

"Maybe we should put a camera in the fridge and record what happens," suggested Charlie.

"I don't want to have a messy refrigerator again. Where can we put the cheesecakes so we can watch them, but they won't make a mess that I have to clean up," his mother was concerned.

Charlie's mother found a big box. They put a camera inside with a light. They took a piece of chocolate cheesecake and put it inside. His mother had bought a vanilla cheesecake and added it to the box.

Charlie started the camera and then they went to bed.

In the morning they looked inside of the box. The vanilla cheesecake was splattered on the sides of the box.

Charlie downloaded the video to his phone, and they began to watch what had happened, but to their surprise, the recording was blank. Charlie looked at the camera and the lens was covered in dark chocolate cheesecake. Evidently the chocolate cheesecake didn't want the camera to record what he did.

Charlie ate the rest of the chocolate cheesecake and then went to see his friend Bacon who lived next door.

He showed Charlie his new shoes his mother had bought him.

"Do you want to try them on?" Bacon asked.

"No, I don't like those shoes. I like sneakers better," Charlie commented. "By the way, do you know what happened last night?"

"No, what happened?" Bacon was now curious.

"We put the chocolate cheesecake in a box with a vanilla cheesecake and the chocolate cheesecake destroyed the vanilla cheesecake. We tried to record the fight, but the chocolate cheesecake blocked the camera, so we didn't see any of it. It was a real mess," Charlie explained.

"I told you chocolate cheesecakes hate other cheesecakes, but you didn't believe me. Now you do." Bacon seemed proud to know what would happen if chocolate cheesecake was put with other cheesecakes.

"This is not good. I love chocolate cheesecake, but my mom always buys other cheesecakes. She won't let me have chocolate cheesecake anymore because she doesn't want to clean the refrigerator all the time. What am I going to do?" Charlie was really upset.

Bacon suggested, "Why don't you keep the chocolate cheesecake in your room? That way it can't fight with the other cheesecakes."

"That's brilliant! Why didn't I think of that?" Charlie was now happy.

He and Bacon went to the store and bought two pieces of chocolate cheesecake and took them home. They were going to eat them right away, but Charlie's mother called and said he had to go home and eat dinner.

"Tell you what. I'll put our cheesecakes in my fridge, and you can come back and have it with me later, okay?" Bacon suggested.

"That's a great idea!" Charlie exclaimed as he walked out the door to go home.

After dinner, Charlie's mother offered him a piece of cookies and cream cheesecake, but he said no.

“I’m going to Bacon’s house. See you later,” Charlie said to his mom.

When he got to Bacon’s house, Bacon was really upset.

“Look at my fridge! My mom put a piece of cookies and cream cheesecake in here. Your mother gave it to her. There must have been a war in here because everything inside is destroyed. It looks like the cookies and cream cheesecake tried to destroy the chocolate cheesecake, but it turned into a battle. They are both splattered everywhere. Now my mom is going to get angry with me because she told me to never put chocolate cheesecake in there,” Bacon blurted out.

Bacon and Charlie went to work cleaning the inside of the fridge.

Bacon took his finger and wiped the cheesecake off the side and put it into his mouth.

“This is delicious! Chocolate cheesecake mixed with cookies and cream cheesecake is amazing!” Bacon was excited.

Charlie tried it too, “You’re right this is amazing! I have an idea,”

After they cleaned the refrigerator they went to the store to buy more cheesecake.

They bought both cookies and cream cheesecake and chocolate cheesecake. They put them into the same box. The box began to shake and rumble. It was hard for Bacon to hold onto it. Eventually the box became quiet. Charlie opened the box and looked inside. It was a mess. The cookies and cream cheesecake and the chocolate cheesecake were all mixed up. He put his hand inside and tasted the mixture. It was delicious! Bacon tried it too and said the same thing.

Charlie took the box home and his mother tried it as well. Everyone who tried it, loved it!

Then he went to the store and gave some to the cook. She liked it too. That is how the chocolate – cookies and cream cheesecake was invented! The cook would put the two cheesecakes in a box and in the morning the two cheesecakes destroyed each other and became mixed.

The cook made similar cheesecake with other flavors. She would serve it like ice cream on a cone. Cookies and cream and chocolate cheesecake became the most popular flavor.

In the end it proves that sometimes what one would think that something is a very negative thing turns out to be unexpectedly good.
