

SHIN-LING GOES SKATING

by
Hal Ames

It was a very cold day when Shin-Ling woke up that morning. The days were getting colder because New Year's Day was coming soon. Shin-Ling loved this time of year. She always loved to play in the snow. She also loved to ice skate, and today was to be her first lesson with her new teacher. She was so excited that she forgot to make her bed.

She got dressed very quickly and ran down the stairs to eat her breakfast. Her mother was waiting for her. She had a hot bowl of rice, steamed bread, pickled vegetables, and fried eggs on the table. Shin-Ling ate quickly, and then she went to the closet to put on all of her winter clothes.

She then asked her mother, "Is it time to go yet?"

Her mother laughed, "No, it's two hours before we have to go to the lesson."

Shin-Ling was ready to go. She had on her best skating outfit and her skates were around her neck. She had on her jacket and her hat. She also had on her scarf and mittens.

Her mother told her to take off all of her winter clothes, and go up to her room. She told her to make her bed before they could leave.

Shin-Ling slowly took off her jacket, scarf, mittens, hat, and skates. Then she went up the stairs to her room to make her bed. She did not like making her bed. She thought it was silly to make her bed since she would just mess it up again later when she went to sleep.

She finished her work then went down to see her mother in the kitchen. Her mom had on her coat and was ready to leave.

She said to Shin-Ling, “C’mon, we’ll go early so you can meet your new teacher.”

Shin-Ling was excited. She put on her coat, her mittens, her scarf, her hat, and put her skates around her neck.

She smiled and said, “Ready!”

Shin-Ling and her mother had to walk in the cold to where the bus would pick them up. Shin-Ling did not even feel the cold. The trip to the ice rink would take about an hour on the bus.

When they climbed aboard the bus, Shin-Ling sat next to the window and watched the people walking on the side of the road. The air was so cold the breath of the people came out in front of them. She watched the buildings go by, the traffic and the people going from place to place. She did not care about them. She was going to her first lesson, and that was all she could think about.

The bus turned a corner and there in front of them was the Ice Palace. They had gone there two weeks before to register for her lessons. She knew exactly where they were.

The bus came to a stop. Shin-Ling almost knocked her mother down as she pushed her way to the door of the bus.

Shin-Ling ran to the entrance of the Ice Palace and waited for her mother to catch up.

The Ice Palace is a very famous place in her city. All of the most famous skaters from her country take lessons there. The very best coaches in her country work there. She had shown the coaches that she had talent the last time she was there. They invited her to come to take special lessons. They said she was very good.

When they went inside, Shin-Ling went to the side of the ice rink. She looked out onto the ice and admired the grace and skill of the skaters as they moved across the ice.

Boys and girls were skating and some of them were skating together. It was a beautiful sight for Shin-Ling. This is what she had been dreaming about since she was eight years old.

Her mother took her by the hand and took her to the office. The lady behind the desk was very nice. She asked Shin-Ling her name, her age and the number of years she had been skating.

Shin-Ling replied, "My name is Wang, Shin-Ling, I'm 10 years old, and I have been skating all of my life."

The lady laughed.

She said, "OK Shin-Ling, are you ready for your first class here at the Ice Palace?"

"OH YES!" Shin-Ling said with a big smile on her face. "I can hardly wait!"

The nice lady took Shin-Ling and her mother to the dressing room.

"Take off your winter clothes and put on your skates. You can start a little early so you can get warmed up before your class. You can go out onto the ice as soon as you are ready," the nice lady told Shin-Ling.

"Mom, I'm going to be skating on the big ice rink. I think I'm scared," Shin-Ling told her mother.

"Don't worry Shin-Ling, you'll do just fine. You are a wonderful skater," her mother responded.

"But the other skaters are SO good. I'm shy. I can't skate that well," Shin-Ling said to her mother with tears in her eyes.

Her mother looked her in the eye and said, "Shin-Ling, you are here because they say you can be a good skater. Those boys and girls were not always this good. They came here just like you to learn. Now they have had many years of training. Yes, they are better than you. Just watch them and learn from them. They are nice children. They'll help you."

Shin-Ling smiled. "OK mommy, I'll do my best!"

Shin-Ling finished putting on her skates, and then she walked slowly to the entrance of the ice rink with her mother right beside her. She looked out onto the ice, took a big breath, and pushed off onto the ice. The smooth ice felt so good under her skates. She skated slowly at first, looking at all of the other skaters and how easy they made it look.

She thought to herself, “Someday I’ll be as good as these other skaters. Someday I’ll be the best!”
